Natalya Radünz approaches painting as both a personal battle and a philosophical exploration. Each canvas is a testament to overcoming self-doubt, transforming struggle into artistic triumph. Her work transcends mere visual representation, offering a window into a reconstructed reality—one that questions existence, societal constraints, and the act of self-definition.

Surya Patil's paintings are stories woven in color and texture, where every brushstroke becomes part of a larger narrative. Working in acrylic, she infuses each canvas with personal emotion, translating life's experiences into visual form. Her work is deeply expressive, aiming to create heartfelt connections with viewers. For Patil, painting is more than an act of creation—it is a dialogue, an unfolding story waiting to be shared.
